Farmers Wanting More Irrigation

Complain That They are Not Getting Nearly Enough Water

The Call has ever been ready to uphold the irrigation project of the Bow Valley and expects always to continue to do so, but at the present time there is reason to criticize the way in which it is being managed and we do not hesitate to do so. Let it be understood that we are not in the least inclined to comment unfavorably on irrigation in this district or anywhere else, but that we do not believe that the system here is being properly handled for the benefit of the farmers, who are paying for it and who will certainly do irrigation and this country more harm than can be repaired in long years unless the present trouble is speedily rectified.

It may here be said that the company is spending large sums of money in an effort to give the best service possible, and that they fully realize that it will still take a lot of money and time to perfect the system.

The company has also had to meet many diversities in the way of the canal breaking away and also in filling up with sediment which they appear to be meeting promptly, but these incidents may be classed as "accidents" that are bound to occur wherever such stupendous works are undertaken.

Then be it understood we are not taking exception to conditions over which the company cannot control or are we desirous of injuring their good work.

Directly from the canal, the water is at that time to one of the four reasons which are: 1. The employees in charge of the canal and laterals are either not doing their best, or incapable, or their instructions are not what is required, or there is too much work crowded upon them, then they can properly attend to it. And the remedy is in the hands of the company.

The continued dry weather of the past week has brought many visitors to The Call and our reporter has been held up on the streets by the hour while the farmers told their trouble in their efforts to get sufficient water to irrigate their crops. Many of these men before coming here never knew what it was to grow a crop without irrigating and in fact could not be induced to purchase land unless they could irrigate it. They are firm believers in irrigation. More, nearly all of them claim that until the past week the time was not ripe to irrigate, and therefore, that they did not attempt it, and now their crops are suffering for want of irrigation.

It is only fair here to state that there is a difference of opinion among some of our irrigators, and some have been irrigating more or less ever since the water was turned into the canal this spring, and these men today have some very promising looking crops. When harvest time comes it will be interesting to note the yield they obtain compared with past years when rain was more abundant. But be it also said that some of these men are complaining that they could use more than they have been getting.

It may be well also to state that the main canal has been full of water and in some places it has been running to waste.

From the complaints it will be noted that there is a demand for more irrigation. While it is regretted that the water was not turned on when the farmers wanted it, the C. P. I. Co. will surely see that the remedy is applied.

On Saturday a number of the farmers gathered in town and after discussing the subject thoroughly appointed two of their number to take up the matter with the company, but at the present writing they have nothing definite to report.

irrigation since they started their project which is properly termed the biggest on the American continent. May they make good.

The Valuable Hen

The hen is the greatest producer of wealth on the American continent, and yet last year Canada exported only $41,700 worth of eggs, while five years ago, in 1905, $727,000 worth were exported. The decrease is due to the fact that the increase in home consumption exceeded the increase in home production. The consequences is that the price of eggs has gone up very materially. Yet strange to say, there seems to be very few going in for this most profitable branch of mixed farming. In Western Canada it is very seldom that eggs go down to twenty cents a dozen, while sixty cents is quite a common price. At an average price of thirty or thirty-five cents a dozen, there is good money in keeping a stock of hens.

If every farmer in Western Canada would keep enough hens to eat his cull wheat and clean up his harvest fields of shelled grain and grasshoppers, he would find his average return per acre very much increased. The outlay is very small when compared with the return.

Denmark, with an area one-fifth of that of Manitoba, with a population of two and a half million people to support, last year exported $1,000,000 worth of eggs to Great Britain. There is no good reason, why with improved methods of packing and transportation, that Canadians should get a large share of this trade, as well as supply the home trade.

Gleichen's New Shops

F. H. Blackburne's Men's Store

With the completion of the new premises Third Avenue is assuming quite a business aspect. Prominently among these F. H. Blackburne's men's outfitting establishment stands forth as an example of progress and foresight. The building has 27 feet frontage by 60 feet depth, and is constructed of brick with plaster walls inside the shop. The height of the ceiling is 13 feet and is of an attractive pattern in metal. The shop front has two large plate glass windows which gives the interior the light of day, and as Mr. Blackburne says "gives the customers a chance to see the quality of the goods." The fittings are complete and attractive with shelving, drawers, and show cases. A large gallery has been placed at the rear end of the shop for extra storage, also a workroom 10 feet by 27 feet where repairs and pressing may be carried on. The basement cellar is 27 feet by 30 feet, containing a large hot air furnace and coal bin. The establishment has electric lighting throughout, which with a complete up-to-date stock in everything that man wears, makes a well finished business house.

C. J. Bray's Furniture Emporium

What is, probably, the largest building in town devoted to the one line of goods is the recently opened furniture emporium of C. J. Bray. Situated in Crowfoot street with an imposing frontage of 55 feet and a depth of 120 feet, the two-storied building marks emphatically the advancement of Gleichen. The building is substantially erected, metal clad on the outside, and lined and coiled inside with v. joint, and painted throughout. The ground floor is devoted exclusively to the display of furniture, which is indeed a large and splendid assortment of drawing and sitting room suites, sideboards, book cases, what-nots, dressing and toilet tables and numerous other articles of furniture that go to make a home cozy and comfortable. The two large plate glass windows, 10 ft. by 7 ft. each, serve a double purpose of supplying light and allowing a display of art. The second floor is used for general household stock, and any article of the home may be seen in numberless varieties. The show of crockery is also particularly good and extensive, on this floor picture framing is done expeditiously, and a choice of over 100 varieties of moulding is there to select from. An idea of the range of selection to be had may be gauged from the fact that $22,000 worth of stock is carried under this roof, and yet another car-load of high art furniture is due in a day or two. Where will we put it, Charley?

Dr Farquharson's New Drug Store

Among the new businesses which the growing population of Gleichen calls for is the Gleichen Pharmacy. Dr Farquharson has erected his new premises in Gleichen street, which shows signs of becoming the main business centre in the near future. The building is a two-story metal clad with fire-proof roofing, and is 26 feet front by 51 feet depth. The ground floor is utilized by the store and dispensary, the former being 21 feet by 41 feet, and the latter 10 feet by 20 feet. The staircase leads from the street up to four suites of offices, each containing two rooms. The walls and partitions throughout the building are of plaster and the ceilings of decorative metal and tastefully painted. The drug store is most thoroughly fitted with show case shelves, glass cases, counters and display tables, neatly designed and finished in old oak. The stock which is on view is unusually extensive and choice, any article required in the toilet, fancy goods, proprietary medicines, stationery, etc., may be had. Mr. E. P. Beckett is manager. Watch Gleichen Grow.

Boys And Girls See The Circus Free

Here is a chance for every boy and girl that wants to see the main show of Barne's Circus. Bring or send the Call two subscriptions for one year each at $1.50 and we will give you a ticket for the big circus. Now rustle boys and girls.

A meeting of the gentlemen of St. Andrew's Church was held in the Rectory on Tuesday evening at nine o'clock. Mr. Castle occupied the chair. It was pointed out that the Church Warden's Fund was as low as 2 cents at the close of the week. It was decided to hold a Lawn Social in the Church grounds on Friday, 22nd July. A strong committee of gentlemen were appointed to carry out the arrangements. Ladies need not apply, but may supply.

Talking about farming the other evening a farmer gave a little of his experience this year which may prove of advantage to others. He stated that in the spring he was late in starting operations and on one field he plowed a number of yards around it and burning off the stubble, disced and seeded the entire field. Where he plowed very little grain came up, but where he had only disced he had a fine stand of wheat. This he claims goes to prove that fall ploughing is the secret to success in farming here and that for the future he will take advantage of his experience.

It Costs $40.00 For Doctor's Visit

On Alberta's Prairies—DR. CHASE'S Medicine and Receipt Book
Very Popular Out There.

The luxuries of city life are little known in the prairie homes of Western Canada. When sickness comes a people find it necessary to depend on their own resources to a great extent on account of the difficulty and expense of a doctor's visit.

By reading the letter quoted here you will form some idea of how Dr. Chase's Medicine and Receipt Book are appreciated in Alberta. This is not only due to the convenience of having these medicines on hand when occasion requires but is also owing to their wonderful reliability.

Where will you find such a restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, to enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves and build up the run down system?

Mr. Geo. Clay, Oxville, Alberta, writes: "I have always been a great admirer of Dr. Chase's Medicine and have had his large Receipt Book for over twenty years. His medicines and book have saved me many doctor bills and have proven wonderfully effective. It costs $40.00 for a doctor to come out here, so it is rather expensive to get sick.

"I recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to a friend of mine for his wife. He studied the symptoms in Dr. Chase's Almanac and found she needed Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore her worn-out nervous system. I gave him some of this medicine until he could get to town when he got two boxes more and these cured her entirely.

"For myself, I used Dr. Chase's Catarrh Powder with splendid results. For some time I was bad with catarrh and could not breathe through my nose. Now I go to bed and never wake all night and breathe all the time through the nose."

Dr. Chase's Medicine are for sale by all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Not Far Wrong

"Say, paw," queried little Sylvester Snodgrass, "what's a test case?"
"A test case, my son," replied Snodgrass, sr., "is a case brought in court to decide whether there's enough in it to justify the lawyers in working up similar cases."—Lippincott's.

A Boon for the Bileless.—The liver is a very sensitive organ and easily deranged. When this occurs there is undue secretion of bile and the acid liquid flows into the stomach and causes it. It is a most distressing ailment, and many are prone to it. In this condition a man finds the best remedy in Parmenter's Vegetable Pills, which are warranted to speedily correct the disorder. There is no better medicine in the entire list of pill prescriptions.

Annapolis, N. S., May 14, 1909.—I am over eighty years of age and have suffered from Kidney and Bladder trouble for fifteen years. I took doctors' medicine but got no help. I want to thank you for sending me the sample box of Gilt Pills, which help me.

I have taken six boxes of Gilt Pills altogether, but got relief before I had taken near that amount. I had to get up some nights every fifteen minutes and had to use an instrument before I could urinate. Now I can lie in bed four or five hours without getting up.

Attacks of cholera and dysentery come quickly, there seldom being any warning of the visit. Remedial action must be taken just as quickly if the patient is to be spared great suffering and permanent injury to the lining membranes of the bowels. It can be got at small cost at any drug store or general dealer's, and it will afford relief before a doctor can be called.

"Keep On Trying"
A little girl who had a live bantam presented to her was disappointed at the smallness of the first egg laid by the bird. Her ideal egg was that of the ostrich, a specimen of which was on the table in the drawing-room. One day the ostrich's egg was missing from its accustomed place. It was subsequently found near the spot where the bantam nested, and on it was stuck a piece of paper with the words: "Something like this, please. Keep on trying."

MONTREAL.—On May 22nd the S. S. "RAKAI" sailed from this port for Auckland, New Zealand, this being the first sailing of the recently subsidized C. P. R. line from Montreal to Australia and New Zealand.

Part of the "RAKAI" cargo consisted of 2 carloads of "2 in 1" Shoe Polish, made in Hamilton by F. E. Daley Co. This is the third shipment of "2 in 1" sent to Australia by the Dalley people within the last year.

The first, sent June 8th is last, consisted of 1,600 gross, the second, sent Nov. 2nd, consisted of 1,500 gross, while the shipment just sent amounted to 1,540 gross, or 221,760 boxes. This brings the total of "2 in 1" sent to Australia within the year up to 581,760 boxes.

It would be hard to find a stronger recommendation for "2 in 1" Shoe Polish than that it should thus force its way to the ends of the earth, past all prohibitive tariffs, against the strongest kind of competition from British and other firms.

The Russian city of Riga is supplied with subsoil water from ninety-one wells, which have a daily capacity of a little over 3,000,000 cubic feet.

New York city had more arrests for violation of the anti-spitting ordinance in 1909 than any other city in the United States, having had 2,513, with 2,000 convictions and $1,934.80 collected in fines.

In the city of Canton, China, are such pleasant sounding streets as Benevolence, Peace, Bright Cloud, Longevity, Early Restored Blessings, Everlasting Love, One Hundred Grandsons, Refreshing Haze, Ninefold Brightness, and so on.

Progress and Labor.

A safe method of firing shots in mines by electricity has been devised.

A ten story building was built in New York city recently in forty-seven working days.

In the last ten years as much rice has been produced in the United States as was produced from 1850 to 1900.

A device for signalling to military balloons at night has been fixed on the tower of the railway station at Spandau. It consists of a large horizontal wooden ring provided with thirty-eight electric incandescent lamps.

President Taft thinks he has a hard job, but he ought to umpire the next world's series games.—Atlanta Journal.

The baseball umpire is a delight to many people, owing to the manner in which he decides a controversy without occupying months in hearing evidence.—Washington Star.

German Gleanings.

Germany's aerial navy already contains fourteen vessels.

All the large match factories of Germany have pooled their losses under an agreement binding until 1920.

Anybody who wears a hatpin in the streets or in public places of Hanover, Prussia, is liable under the law to arrest and fine.

Germany is a petroleum producer on a small scale. Thirty wells in 1908 yielded crude oil to the amount of 113,518 tons of 2,204 pounds each.

WORKMEN ARTISTS.

England is Showing Some Quite Remarkable Work.

A short time ago the papers referred to a wonderful collection of pictures by German working men which had been collected by Dr. Adolf Leventstein, of Berlin. An article dealing with these pictures was published in The Strand Magazine, and the editor of that famous monthly invited working men of this country who had devoted their leisure to drawing and painting to send specimens of their work.

The result of the invitation was astonishing. Hundreds of paintings and drawings were forwarded by British working-men. Dozens of trades were represented, including such diverse occupations as gardener, house-painter, lighterman, paperhanger, compositor, railway porter, weaver, coal-miner, waiter, and many others.

A selection of these pictures is published in the May number of The Strand, and the general artistic merit is such as to cause one to marvel that so much talent lies hidden among working men whose daily toil secures for them a wage averaging from $5 to $6 per week. The article published in The Strand commences with an initial picture-letter worthy of Walter Crane. It has been drawn by H. W. Ford, who for eight years worked as a bottle washer to a firm of wine merchants, and whose weekly wage amounts to $5.50.

But this humble artist has higher thoughts than bottle-washing. "When ever I discover a book like Burke's 'Sublime and Beautiful,'" he says, "at the lending library, I reckon life's worth living. But you don't get much sympathy. Some people imagine that artistic cellarmen, bricklayers, laborers, etc., are simply wasting their time. Keeping pigeons or poultry, or canvassing for insurance companies in one's spare time, would, according to them, be much more sensible. But they are narrow-minded, that is all."

A shoemaker named Robert Malet, earning $5 per week, has executed a beautiful landscape depicting the village of Costessey, near Norwich. He has never been taught painting. A sign-writer employed by the gas company at Beckton sent in a realistic study of a lion. "The Adoration of the Shepherds," a striking picture painted by Alfred Ichniour, a house painter, of twenty-four, earning $7 a week, "deserves great praise," to quote the words of The Strand's art editor. "The composition and lighting show a sense of truth, as well as of the dramatic needs of the scene."

Kitchener Anecdotes.

During the South African War Lord Kitchener, who has returned to England after eight years' work abroad, was once in a certain captain with an important commission. Unfortunately, the captain's horse cast a shoe. Hence a disastrous delay. "Very sorry," was the general's sarcastic comment, "but I cannot rest my plan of campaign on a horse's shoe or an officer's carelessness. Thus it is that 'K' is a neglected kindred. It signifies the futility of excuses and the necessity of being prepared for anything and everything. No man, it is said, has a greater faculty of estimating a man's capabilities at a glance. But he made a mistake on one occasion."

It was during the Boer War, at Vrededorp Road Station, that he started fitting out extempore mounted infantry columns. He determined to equip and send them into the field at once. He went to the waiting-room, to look for officers, and found a single man in occupation. He was smart and alert, and pleased Lord K's critical eye. "You will command a corps of mounted infantry I have just raised," said the general. "Very good, sir. What will my duties be?" "Don't you know your duties?" "My own—yes, sir." "Then don't argue. What is your regiment?" "Blankskins, sir." "What rank?" "Master sailor, sir," Kitchener hurriedly left.

Famous Miniatures Found.

A curious discovery of valuable miniatures has been made at West Hadon, near Rugby. For some years an elderly lady, Miss Fouquier, a descendant of a Huguenot family, had lived with a shepherd and his wife, and when she died a few weeks ago it was found she had bequeathed her belongings to the couple. The goods were not thought to be worth more than $100, but it is reported that when the cupboard of the ancient writing cabinet was opened a rare collection of miniatures was discovered, all of famous artists, as well as fine old prints and valuable Chinese pieces of rare value. They will bring in a decent fortune for the shepherd and his wife when they are put up for sale.

Wooded With Music.

Among the Yao Midos, one of the many Burmese-Tartar people, the young men who their wives absolutely without words, but to the sound of music. On the first day of winter they have a great feast, at which all the marriageable girls gather and listen to the music made by the bachelors, who sit under the "desire tree," each playing his favorite instrument. As the maiden he loves passes him the youth plays louder and more feelingly. If the girl ignores him and passes on he knows that she will have none of him if she steps up to him and lays a flower upon the instrument he jumps up, grasps her by the hand, taking care not to drop the flower, and they go away together.

Distillery in Bath Room.

Raiding premises in a crowded neighborhood of Belfast, Ireland, the other day, the police found an illicit still in the bath-room in full working order, together with a quantity of spirits, and a second still was found in another room. The front of the premises was fitted up as a grocer's shop. The gas used for the still was drawn direct from the main, and not through a meter. The amateur distillers were fined $500 each.

London Shop Clerks.

The London employer in hiring a shop clerk insists on an agreement that the latter shall not go into business for himself or enter the employ of another within a certain time limit after leaving his employer.

CRIPPLED BY RHEUMATISM

Suffered Tortures Until "Fruit-a-tives" Took Away The Pain.

"Fruit-a-tives," the famous fruit medicine, is the greatest and most scientific remedy ever discovered for Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives," by its marvellous action on the bowels, kidneys and skin, prevents the accumulation of Uric Acid, which causes Rheumatism and thereby keeps the blood pure and rich.

Mrs. Walter Hooper, of Hillview, Ont., says: "I suffered from severe Rheumatism, lost the use of my right arm and could not do my work. Consulting helped me until I took 'Fruit-a-tives' and this medicine cured me."

If you are subject to Rheumatism, don't wait until a severe attack comes on before trying "Fruit-a-tives." Take these fruit tablets now and thus prevent the attacks.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

A SAFE MEDICINE FOR ALL CHILDREN

The mothers whose little ones are ill not only wish for a medicine that will make their babies better but one that positively cannot do any harm. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. They are sold under the positive guarantee of a government analyst to contain no opiate, narcotic or other harmful drug. "They always do good," they cannot possibly do harm and even to the most nervous baby. Concerning Mrs. J. E. Z. Marchand, Ste. Anne de la Perade, Que., writes:—"I find Baby's Own Tablets indispensable. As soon as I find one of my children not feeling well I administer the Tablets and I am never disappointed in the result. I would not be without them and am enclosing fifty cents for two more boxes. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

"I'll give you a position as clerk to start with," said the merchant, "and pay you what you are worth. Is that satisfactory?"

"Oh, perfectly," replied the college graduate. "But I do not want the firm can afford to?"—Lippincott's.

Investment v. Speculation

In respect to the purchase of mining shares, there are probably no two terms more loosely used than investment and speculation. Shares purchased for their dividend return when the purchase price is in sight in the mine is the only class of mining security which admits the use of the term "investment."

The average buyer of mining stocks usually prefers to term his commitment as an investment, but at heart what he wants is a speculation. He wants big mining profits. He wants his hundred dollars to grow into thousands, and that is why he selects mining as his medium to that end—because mining affords just the opportunity which at heart he desires, no matter what term he chooses to apply to his action.

He also is correct in principle and, when fairly considered, mining investments, so-called, are a most legitimate means to that end. A man of limited income or limited earning power can reach the stage of financial independence by some process of rapid increase in values, and this is just what is always possible in well directed mining ventures.

These facts are worthy of consideration locally just now, and those who have recently bought coal and other mining shares should look altogether on the investment side, and leave the speculation to a later date when the properties in which they have invested are developed sufficiently to be permanent producers. Too often inexperienced mining stockholders misunderstand the terms used in mining. Many a mine may be developed sufficiently to "become" permanent producers, but it is another thing to "be" permanent producers. By that we mean that frequently in the opening of a coal or other mine it is long months before sufficient mineral is shipped to make it pay; and, therefore, each investor should make sure that he is allowing plenty of time for a return of outlay. Coal mining usually returns much quicker profits than quartz mining and many who are now buying coal stock may do well, but it is well to carefully consider the "investment."

Kindness on a Farm

A farmer in North Dakota having been sick all winter and spring, on a given day his neighbors met at his farm and with 22 outfits plowed harrowed, and sowed 100 acres in a single day. The wives and daughters came, and served a fine noon dinner on the lawn, making a gala event of the day. This pleasing incident reads like a chapter from 50 to 100 years ago, with its barn or house "raisings," neighborhood harvestings and threshings, and other similar occasions where the spirit of mutual helpfulness prevailed, without thought of financial consideration. The only desire was to do a neighbor a "good turn." In our highly organized social life, in the mad whirl in which we move, we are losing much of this simple, neighborly spirit, and it is a great loss. Promiscuous charity is admittedly a bad policy, but organized charities cannot cover all cases and supply all needs. Outside of all charitable agencies there will always be a wide field for kindness and thoughtfulness to call out the unselfish qualities of nature. Let us, therefore, seek to cultivate them.

While at the start off it was stated that the resignation of E. H. Riley would bring on the "hottest" election ever witnessed in the province of Alberta, so far there appears to be "nothing doing" in this direction—excepting the weather. Indeed for the past week or two it has almost been forgotten that an election is to take place in the Gleichen riding shortly. Locally neither of the political parties have held meetings, and at the present writing do not appear to be likely to hold meetings. It is just as well during the warm weather to keep cool, and it may be that the result will be the better for it.

Here is a complaint that may be heard in Gleichen some sweet day: We all admit that telephones are a great convenience, yet they occasionally make a man feel like breaking the third commandment. Sometimes on a busy day when work is rushing and your phone rings twenty-eight times and only two rings are of any importance, the other twenty-six being calls from some one wanting to speak to your help, the inquiry being "Is Miss—in?" This takes two from their work twenty-six times, and someone has to pay for all the lost time in addition to the annoyance. It doesn't look just right, now does it? During working hours, 'phones in business houses, at least should be used for business only.

We were asked this week by a delinquent subscriber why we kept on sending the paper after the subscription date had expired. Every weekly newspaper in towns of this size are forced to do this. Should we stop subscriptions when time expires nine times out of ten the subscriber would give us a calling down for insinuating that his credit was not good. Rather than to cast a reflection against the honesty of a subscriber to pay a small debt, it is next to a necessity for a home paper to continue sending the paper after the time has expired. It is not necessary for the city dailies and weeklies to follow this rule, as their subscribers live at a distance and are not personal friends as is the case with a majority of our subscribers. Our subscribers should deem it an honor to know that we do not doubt their integrity and continue to send them the paper after their time has expired. Should any desire their paper discontinued they should notify us and remit to date if they have not already done so.

A Great Booster for Canada

It would seem that our Governor General is one of Canada's greatest boosters, according to a dispatch from England which reads: "On Earl Grey's arrival he was immediately surrounded by a band of eager press men, but held his own against the fire of questions with frank good humor and evaded all questions of controversial topics."

"I had a delightful voyage on a most comfortable ship. The development of Canada is going as strong as it can go. The maritime provinces are as good for immigration as the northwest, and the country's prospects seem very bright."

Continuing he said: "Why don't you come to that country? You can't understand it till you visit and see it. When you have visited it once you won't be happy until you have seen it a dozen times."

Earl Grey added that Canadians were placed with the present case of immigrants. He was finally asked about the imperial spirit in Canada and replied:

"The imperial spirit is all right in Canada. Why they are more imperial than I am. I wish you would come to Toronto and see an empire day as I saw it. You would know what I mean. The people of Canada believe in themselves and their future as part of the empire."

The Circus is Coming

Everybody, old as well as young, are in a fever of excitement over the coming of Barnes' big three ring wild animal Circus that will appear in Gleichen, Friday, 8th July. This wonderful animal exhibition is looked to play at all the big Canadian fairs and played the week of April 18th at Spokane under the auspices of the Merchants' Exposition.

The Spokane press announce the Barnes' Show as the most wonderful animal exhibition ever in the North West. Read what the "Tribune," Cranbrook, B.C., says of the performance: "The circus is come and gone, and every person of the many thousands who were in attendance, pronounced it to be the very best circus that has ever been seen in the Kootenay or the Cranbrook districts. The A. G. Barnes big three ring circus is a distinctive credit to the owner, manager, and trainers. It is the one show on the road that depends entirely upon trained animals of every description as its performers. It brings the wild animals of the forest, the feroocious animals of the Dark Continent, the African jungle, before the people in such a way that is indicative of animal life in its state of nature, also in an elevated state. It also shows what a condition men, by time and perseverance, can take these animals and educate them so as to enlighten and amuse mankind." The A. G. Barnes circus is a big three ring show, the centre ring being a cage some 40 feet in diameter, made of heavy iron bars, affording absolute protection to the audience and being closed in such a manner as to ensure in case of trouble or that one or more of the animals should get beyond the control of its trainer, a sure guarantee of safety to all.

Among the many features to be seen in the A. G. Barnes' circus are the Irish Arabian Stallions, the three Siamese elephants under the management of Mr T. Buckley perform wonderful stunts, a group of Russian bears under the direction of Robert Thornton give a very sensational set, the wrestling bears (Tutts and Dr. Roller, are great experts of the wrestling game and never fail to bring shouts of approval for their dexterity. One of the most wonderful of the many exhibits is the performing sealions, from Dick and Harry, who were captured off the Farnes Islands, by Captain Snowdon, who has educated them to such a degree that they ride horseback, perform on musical instruments, climb stairs, play football and other interesting stunts. Millie Barnes has a novelty and sensational act with Nero, the riding lion, the only African lion taught to ride a horse. Over two hours of sensational animal acts occupied the attention of the large audience at each performance in this city. Special mention must be made of the military band and their condition of perfect discipline, which places them in the front rank of bands in Canada. In conclusion we would say that the A. G. Barnes circus is the cleanest and most interesting circus which has ever visited Cranbrook.

The average girl is un-er-er-er her engagement ring than she ever will be of her husband.

Some Calgary Exhibition Entries

The entries for the Provincial Exhibition to be held at Calgary June 30 to July 7th, have closed and are going to keep the management extremely busy in providing the necessary accommodation. Following is a comparison of some of the most important entries with those of last year:

	1910	1909 % increase
Cattle	411	3.6
Horses	775	0.16
Sheep	288	177
Agri products	109	43

These figures do not include an championship entries. It will be noted that the increase is very large in each department. In the acre yield competition there are 44 entries. Following is a list of some of those who are making exhibits in the acre yield competition who are known to The Call readers. This will undoubtedly be one of the most interesting agricultural features ever seen at an exhibition.

The exhibition offices and the exhibition grounds are now open to the public and everything will be ready for the official opening on Dominion day, July 1st.

A large list of names have been received from residents all over the city to assist the hotels in providing accommodation for exhibition visitors. Everything points to the exhibition being a grand success.

"I don't see yet how Kirkwood got anything to do with Dorothy."

"Miss Calendar to you, Mr. Mulready," snapped Calendar. "There, there, now! Don't get excited! It was when the Hallam passed me word that a man from the Yard was waiting on the altar steps for me that Kirkwood came in. He was dining close by. I went over and worked on his feelings until he agreed to take Dorothy off my hands. If I had attempted to leave the place with her they'd have spotted me for sure. My compliments to you, Dick Mulready."

There came the noise of chair legs scraped harshly on the cabin deck. Apparently Mulready had leaped to his feet in a rage.

"I've told you," he began in a voice thick with passion.

"Oh, sit down!" Calendar cut in contemptuously. "Sit down! D'you hear? That's all over and done with. We understand each other now, and you won't try any more monkey shenanigans. It's a square deal and a square divide so far's I'm concerned. If we stick together there'll be profit enough for all concerned. Sit down, Mul, and have another slug of the captain's bum rum."

Although Mulready consented to be pacified, Kirkwood got the impression that the man was far gone in drink. A moment later he heard him growl "Chin-chin!" antiphonal to the captain's "Cheer-o!"

"Now, then," Calendar proposed. "Mr. Kirkwood aside peace be with him—let's get down to business."

"What's the row?" asked the captain. "The row, cap'n, is the Hallam female, who has unexpectedly shown up in Antwerp, we have reason to believe, with malicious intent and a private detective to add to the gaiety of nations."

"What's the odds? She can't hurt us without lynin' up trouble for 'erself."

"Mighty little consolation to us when we're working it out in jail."

"Speak for yourself," granted Mulready surlily.

"Go," returned Calendar easily. "We're both in the shadow of jail, Mul, my boy, since you choose to take the reference as personal. Sing Sing, however, yawns for me alone. It's going to keep on yawning, too, unless I miss my guess—I love my native land most to death, but—"

"Oh, how to it?" interrupted the captain irritably. "Let's 'ear about the 'Hallam. What're you afraid of?"

"Fraid she'll set up a yell when she finds out we're planting the loot, cap'n. She's just that vindictive. You'd think she'd be satisfied with her end of the stick, but you don't know the Hallam. That milk and water offspring of hers is the apple of her eye, and Freddie's going to collar the whole shooting match or madam will kick over the traces."

"Well," she quivered as here. We can't do anything if my lady is going to camp on our trail and tell everybody we're shady customers, can we? The question now before the board is, Where now—and how?"

"Amsterdam," Mulready chimed in. "I told you that in the beginning."

"But how?" argued Calendar. "The Lord knows I'm willing, but we can't go by rail, thanks to the Hallam. We've got to lose her first of all."

"But what I'm asking is what's the matter with—"

"The Althea, cap'n? Nothing, so far as Dick and I are concerned. But my dutiful daughter is prejudiced. She's been so long without proper paternal discipline," Calendar laughed, "that she's rather high spirited. Of course I might overcome her objections, but the girl's no fool, and every ounce of pressure I bring to bear just now only helps make her more restless and suspicious."

"You leave her to me," Mulready interposed, with a brutal laugh. "I'll guarantee to get her aboard or—"

"Drop it, Dick," Calendar advised quietly, "and go a bit easy with that bottle for five minutes, can't you?"

"Well, then," Stryker resumed, apparently concurring in Calendar's attitude, "we don't one of you tyke the stuff, go off quiet and dispose of it to a proper fence and come back to divide. I don't see why that—"

"Naturally you wouldn't," chuckled Calendar. "Few people besides the two of us understand the depth of affection existing between Dick, here, and me. We just can't bear to get out of sight of each other. We're sure inseparable—since night before last. Odd, isn't it?"

"You drop it!" snarled Mulready in accents so ugly that the listener was startled. "Enough's enough, and—"

"There, there, Dick! All right. I'll behave," Calendar soothed him. "We'll forget and say no more about it."

"But, as either of you a plan?" persisted Stryker.

"I have," replied Mulready, "and it's the simplest and best, if you could only make this long lost parent here see it."

"What is it?"

Mulready seemed to ignore Calendar and address himself to the captain. He articulated with some difficulty stuttering his words to the point of indistinctness at times.

"Simple enough," he propounded solemnly. "We've got the gladstone bag here. Miss Dolly's at the hotel. That's her papa's bright notion. He thinks she's to be trusted. Now, then, what's the matter with weighing anchor and slipping quietly out to sea?"

"Leavin' the doubtful darter?"

"Cert'nly. She's only a drag anyway. Better off without her. Then we can wait our time and get highest market prices."

"You forget, Dick," Calendar put it. "That there's a thousand in it for each of us if she's kept out of England for six weeks. A thousand's five thousand in the land I tell you. I can use five thousand in my business."

"Why can't you be content with what you've got?" demanded Mulready wrathfully.

"Because I'm a seventh son of a seventh son. I can see an inch or two beyond my nose. If Dorothy ever finds her way back to England she'll spoil one of the finest fields of legitimate graft I ever licked my lips to look at. The trouble with you, Mul, is you're too high toned. You want to play the swell mobman from post to finish. A quick touch and a clean getaway for you. Now, that's all right—that has its good points—but you don't want to underestimate the advantages of a good blackmailing connection. If I can keep Dorothy quiet long enough I look to the Hallam and precious Freddie to be a great comfort to me in my old age."

"Then, for heaven's sake," cried Mulready, "go to the hotel, get your brat by the scruff of her pretty neck and bring her aboard! Let's get out of this!"

"I won't," returned Calendar indifferently.

The dispute continued, but the listener had heard enough. Stealthily he crept away to the rail, to stand grasping it and staring across the water with unseeing eyes at the gay old city twinkling back with her thousand eyes of light.

Over there, across the water, in the dingy and disreputable Hotel du Commerce, Dorothy waited in her room, doubtless the prey of unnumbered nameless terrors, while aboard the brigantine her fate was being decided by a council of three unspeakable scoundrels, one of whom, professing himself her father, openly declared his intention of using her to further his selfish and criminal ends.

His first and natural thought—to steal away to her and induce her to accompany him back to England—Kirkwood perforce discarded. He could have kept over the realization of his unqualified impotency. He had no money, not even cab fare from the hotel to the railway station. Something subtler, more crafty, had to be contrived to meet the emergency. And there was one way, one only.

He made himself one of the company of her enemies, forced himself upon their gratitude, gained their confidence, then when opportunity offered betrayed them and the power to make them tolerate him, if not receive him as a fellow, the knowledge of them and their plans that they had unwittingly given him, was his.

And Dorothy was waiting.

He swung round and without attempting to muffle his footsteps strode toward the companionway. He must pretend he had just come aboard.

Eubonically he had been aware during his time of pondering, that the voices in the cabin had been steadily gaining in volume, rising louder and yet more loud, Mulready's ominous, tink blurred accents dominating the others. There was a quarrel afoot. As soon as he gave it heed Kirkwood understood that Mulready in the madness of his inflamed brain was forcing the issue, while Calendar sought vainly to calm and soothe him.

The American arrived at the head of the companionway at a critical juncture. As he moved to descend some one, cool toned retort of Calendar's seemed to enrage his confederate beyond reason. He yelled aloud with wrath, sprang to his feet, knocking over a chair, and, leaping back toward the foot of the steps, flashed an adroit and behind him and found his revolver.

"I've stood enough from you!" he screamed, his voice oddly clear in that moment of insanity. "You've played with me as long as you will, you bulking American hog! And now I'm going to show you—"

As he held his fire to permit his denunciation to bite home Kirkwood, unopposed to find himself standing on the threshold of a tragedy, gathered himself together and launched through the air, straight for the madman's shoulders.

As they went down together sprawling Mulready's head struck against a ransom, and the revolver fell from his limp fingers.

CHAPTER XXI.

PREPARED as he had been for the shock, Kirkwood was able to pick himself up quickly, uninjured, Mulready's revolver in his grasp.

On his feet, straddling Mulready's suppliant body, he confronted Calendar and Stryker. The face of the latter was a sickly green, the gift of his right. The former seemed coldly composed, already recovering from his surprise and bringing his wits to bear upon the new factor which had been unceremoniously injected into the situation.

He was leaning heavily upon a hand hat rested flat on the table. In his hand he held a revolver, which he had apparently drawn in self defense at the crisis of Mulready's frenzy; its muzzle was directed. He looked Kirkwood over with a cool gray eye, the color gradually returning to his fat, clean shaven cheeks, replacing the pardonable pallor which had momentarily rested thereon.

As for Kirkwood, he had covered the fat adventurer before he knew it, stryker, who had been standing immediately in the rear of Calendar, immediately cowered and cringed to find himself in the line of fire.

Of the three conscious men in the brigantine's cabin Calendar was probably the least confused or excited. Stryker was palpably unmanned. Kirkwood was tingling with a sense of mastery, but collected and rapidly revolving the combinations for the reversed conditions which had been brought about by Mulready's drunken folly. His elation was apparent in his shining boyish eyes as well as in the bright color that glowed in his cheeks. When he decided to speak, it was with rapid enunciation, but clearly and concisely.

"Calendar," he began, "if a single shot is fired about this vessel the river police will be buzzing round your ears in a brace of shakes."

The fat adventurer nodded assent, his eyes contracting.

"Very well," continued Kirkwood brusquely. "You must know that I have personally nothing to fear from the police. If arrested I wouldn't be detained a day. On the other hand, you—Hand me that pistol, Calendar, but first, please. Look sharp, my man! If you don't—"

He left the ellipsis to be filled in by the corpulent blackguard's intelligence. The latter, gray eyes still intent on the younger man's face, warred, plainly impressed, but still wavered.

"Quick! I'm not patient tonight."

No longer was Calendar of two minds. In the face of Kirkwood's attitude there was but one course to be followed—that of obedience. Calendar surrendered an untenable position as gracefully as could be wished.

Kirkwood was tingling with a sense of mastery.

Miss Anglin, who is but 34 years old, made her first professional appearance at the Academy of Music in New York in the fall of 1894. She was born in Ottawa, her father being speaker of the House of Commons at the time, and before she went to study dramatic art and to prepare herself for a stage career, she was educated in a convent in Montreal.

It was in the fall of 1908, as Roxane in Richard Mansfield's production of Camille, that Miss Anglin became famous throughout the country as one of the foremost emotional actresses of the day. Of late years her work in The Great Divide and The Awakening of Helena Ritchie have left nothing to be desired and have earned for her the unstinted praise of critics and theatre-goers alike.

A Strenuous Peer.

The Earl of Crewe, the Liberal leader in the British House of Lords, who has been prominent in the recent reform debate, has been Lord President of the Council since 1906, and was formerly Assistant Private Secretary to the Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He was also Viceroy of Ireland from 1892-95, and that he is a thorough man of the world in the best sense of the word is shown by the fact that he is not only a poet and an author of considerable distinction, and a book-lover who possesses one of the best libraries in the kingdom, but is also a great racing man and a member of the Jockey Club. The earl is a model landlord and a keen agriculturist. Garden cities are among his hobbies, and he helped to promote the scheme for a garden suburb overlooking Hampstead Heath. He has often spoken at meetings of farmers, and has been once declared that an imperial race cannot exist on stewed tea and white bread.

Might Need Them.

His friends tell a story about the young Marquis of Anglesey, who died in Monte Carlo some five years ago. "Lord Anglesey's cars were the most luxurious ever known," said Mr. Belmont. "The young man went to extremes in everything. He was very intelligent, though. Once, at his historic castle in Wales, there was a slight fire. So, lest the priceless pile burn down, he ordered an enormous quantity of hand grenades, or extinguishers, from London. When the grenades arrived they were hung all over the castle, but though it was an enormous place, there were still several dozen grenades left over at the end of the hanging. 'And what shall I do with them, my lord?' the butler asked. Lord Anglesey coughed—he was already in a pretty bad way—and said drily to the butler: 'You may put them in my coffin.'"

Paid in Horseshoes.

More than five centuries ago the corporation of London acquired from the Crown a forge for which it promised to pay an annual rent in its products. Although the forge was demolished in a riot during the reign of Richard II., 1377-1399, and was never restored, the rent is still punctually paid every October.

Last autumn, on the appointed day, the city solicitor went to the office of the King's remembrancer and made the following proclamation:

"Oyez, oyez, oyez. Tenants and occupiers of a certain tenement called the Forge, in the parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, come forth and do your service."

The city solicitor then solemnly counted six horseshoes and sixty-one nails.

The Shah's Dagger.

It is therefore carefully shut up in a sandalwood box on which is engraved a verse from the Koran.

TO PRESENT ANTIGONE

MARGARET ANGLIN UNDER-TAKES A BIG TASK.

While Other Actors and Actresses Are Enjoying Their Vacations Canadian Woman Is Out in California Superintending a Huge Production of Greek Tragedy—Made Her Hit as Roxane

The Greek Theatre of the University of California at Berkeley next month will be the scene of a remarkable performance given by Margaret Anglin, the great Canadian actress, and a specially selected company of players. Miss Anglin, who is conceded to be one of the world's most talented artists as well as a woman of pronounced beauty, will present Antigone, and the single performance will be given under the auspices of the university itself. The greatest pains have been taken to have the mounting and staging correct in every detail, all of which, needless to say, involves a lot of hard work on Miss Anglin's part. But that charming young woman whose few years at the head of her own company have resulted in achievements of the most commendable type, does not understand the meaning of the word rest, let alone idleness. Instead of spending the summer in the mountains or at the seashore, as do most of the successful player folk, she is touring the Pacific coast, much to the delight of westerners.

Miss Anglin, who is but 34 years old, made her first professional appearance at the Academy of Music in New York in the fall of 1894. SINGING BY THE HOUR.

Liverpool Magistrate Breaks a Long Distance Vocal Record.

Mr. Alexander Porter, the Liverpool magistrate, who recently celebrated his seventy-second birthday by singing a round century of songs in six hours and three-quarters, has placed to his credit a feat which deserves a niche in the temple of "unconventional" records, which are often as interesting as they are little known.

Mr. Porter has many formidable rivals in the field of music. Some years ago Herr Berg, at the Westminster Aquarium, played the piano continuously for thirty hours without "turning a hair," and crowned this performance by improvising what he christened the "Thirty Hours' Galop." More recently Mr. Napoleon Bird, at the Stockport Armory, added eighteen hours to Herr Berg's record, playing without a moment's pause, 1,500 separate compositions, accompanying three concerts, and playing twice for dancing.

And even this amazing feat was surpassed by Signor Buncia, who played the piano for fifty hours without stopping, and wound up his performance by writing a long account of it and giving a lesson to one of his pupils; while, for a wager, a Mr. Scarborough once struck over a million notes on the piano in less than a dozen hours.

On the list of out-of-the-way records are many feats equally remarkable. Thus, at a waltz tournament in the Salle Wagram, a Parisian couple not long ago eclipsed all records and beat all their rivals hopelessly by dancing six and three-quarter hours without stopping for a single second. Messrs. Jules Cohen and Pierre Janssaud played a game of billiards for twenty-four consecutive hours, walking, according to their pedometers, a distance of thirty miles, and running up a joint score of 8,434 points. And some years ago an Italian professor startled London by reciting the whole of Dante's "Divine Comedy" from memory in a continuous sitting of twenty hours, starting at six o'clock one evening and ending at two o'clock the following afternoon.

But there is no limit to the range of these curious records, which include such feats as swinging the clubs for forty-six hours without ceasing for even the fraction of a second; a tug-of-war, at Deseronto, Ontario, which lasted two hours and ten minutes; and ringing a peal of 11,111 changes on the bells at Birmingham, Eng., in eight hours.

Nor must we forget such out-of-the-way feats as those of Harrison, of Arizona, who ate a score of cysters every hour for seventy-two hours; and of Frank Uncles, of New York, who made 2,000 consecutive jumps with a skipping-rope in fourteen and a-half minutes!

A CANADIAN VERTUOSO.

Miss Kathleen Parlow Has Attracted Much Comment.

There have been very few Canadian musicians in the history of this country who have occasioned so much comment as Miss Kathleen Parlow, the young violinist, whose artistic powers have, during the last year or so, very steadily matured. This spring she made her first appearance at a London Philharmonic Concert, and selected for that debut the Concerto in A minor for violin and orchestra by Carl Goldmark, a work that is not very frequently performed. It is distinguished by much melodic invention and abundant skill in the development of the themes. Miss Parlow gave an excellent exposition of the solo parts, playing throughout in a manner that was sound rather than sensational, and always with fluent ease and refinement as well as with intellectual apprehension. Her capabilities were very well appreciated, for at the close of the work she was enthusiastically applauded and also several times recalled.

They Liked the Story.

Conan Doyle related this anecdote to show how a good story can delight simple-minded folk:

In a remote village the blacksmith had got hold of an old copy of a successful novel. In the long evenings he used to read it aloud to the villagers, who fairly revelled in it and listened it out patiently to the end. At length, when the happy turn of fortune arrived which brings the hero and heroine together and sets them living long and happily, according to the most approved rules, the villagers were so delighted at the happy ending that they rushed off to procure the church keys and rang a merry peal, as they were wont to do when a member of their community was married.

A Canadian Explorer.

Mr. W. W. Leach, who left Ottawa recently in charge of a large party of the Dominion Geological Survey to conduct an exploratory survey of the Skeena River district in British Columbia, is one of the "coming" class of explorers in the Geological Survey.

Ever since graduating from McGill University, some twenty years ago, he has been connected with the survey, first in office and laboratory work, later in the field. The task with which he is now entrusted is considered a very important one, and will occupy the whole of the summer, if not longer. The country to be explored is mountainous and unknown, but from time to time vague reports of great mineral wealth have been taken out to the coast by Indians and trappers. Mr. Leach is a grandson of one of the pioneers of higher education in Canada, the late Vn. Archdeacon Leach.

Sun's Volume.

The volume of the sun is about one million three hundred thousand times that of the earth.

Thackeray's Correction.

A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsum Downs in Thackeray's company noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not to native and experienced eyes the real article.

"Ah," said the visitor, "these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?"

"No, no," replied Thackeray; "only Epsum salts."

AN OTTAWA FAVORITE.

Miss Claire Oliver, Daughter of Minister, Is Popular at Capital.

The marriage of Miss Claire Oliver, second daughter of the Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior, whose engagement to Mr. Allan Keefe is announced, will cause quite a tinkle in the inner official circles at Ottawa, especially as it comes after the marriage of Miss Fielding. The latter, by reason of her qualities as a brilliant accomplished young woman, held a unique position among the young ladies of the ministerial set, and so does Miss Claire Oliver by reason of her lovely disposition, her unaffected good nature and unflinching energy. When the Olivers came to Ottawa from Edmonton some six years ago there was much curiosity as to how the members of the family of the new Minister from the wild and woolly west would fit into their places in Ottawa society. People who do not live in or frequently visit the Capital scarcely realize what an important factor official social life there is growing to be. Thanks to the development of transportation and hotel facilities, and owing to some extent to the increased lengths of the sessions of Parliament, the number of Senators and members of the Commons and their wives and families, who flock to Ottawa for the session increases every year, resulting in the gradual expansion of the official social set. Again, as Ottawa itself expands and increases, and it is growing very rapidly, its natural attractiveness as a residential city, becomes more pronounced, and private people of wealth are being attracted to take up their permanent residence there, not only from various parts of Canada, but from the United States. And it is becoming the habit for private families of means to go to Ottawa for the session, taking up their quarters in rented furnished houses, in apartments or in hotels. In short, the national capital is rapidly developing into a sort of social clearing house. The officials in charge of the parliamentary and state functions, whose predecessors used to worry about getting enough properly dressed and duly qualified people to make a respectable showing, now find themselves at their wits' ends to keep down the invitation lists to manageable limits. The centre of the whirl of social activity at Ottawa, is of course Government House, but tables of precedence and the splendid location of country, guide and protect His Excellency's household. It is upon the ministerial circle that the chief pressure is felt. It is there that the exercise of constant care, of tact, of consideration, of carefully disguised self-sacrifice is principally called for.

When the Canadian papers, at the time Mr. Oliver was appointed Minister of the Interior, published photographic and biographical sketches of the new Minister's wife, they dwelt upon the romance of her early life; of how she, a young country girl, and her husband, made their long trip across the prairies from Brandon to Fort Edmonton in their own wagon. Affecting tales of how the young couple built and furnished the modest shack which was their first home, how they together used to pray the earlier issues of Mr. Oliver's paper, and, generally how they fought and overcame poverty, were told at length. Old-fashioned society dames at Ottawa rather turned up their noses and sniffed at these touching tales, and predicted that all sorts of dreadful things would happen when the Edmonton family broke into Ottawa society. But they didn't. When Mr. Oliver and her daughters arrived it was found that they were anything but people of the dime-novel western border type. They were, of course, unversed in the stiff formalities of official society; but what they lacked in that respect they more than made up for by an abundant supply of keen western wit and a determination to succeed in the sphere to which they had been unexpectedly called. From the start Mrs. Oliver was determined that no one should be able to say that she had not done her whole duty in a social way, and in giving effect to her determination she has been ably seconded by her daughters, and more particularly by Miss Claire. The latter is a prime favorite with all in Ottawa, from His Excellency down to the smallest page in Parliament House, and she is just as active in charitable work as in society. At the recent hospital tag-day in Ottawa the general committee shrewdly stationed Miss Oliver on Sparks street at the corner of Elgin, where most of the leading men of Ottawa had to pass going to and from their offices. She stood there the whole day with her bonnet under her arm to which she passed her without a contribution, whether they had been tagged previously or not. Despite her popularity and her intimacy with the leading people of the country, Miss Oliver remains absolutely unaffected, being as free and natural as when she first arrived at Ottawa, an unsophisticated, fair-haired, blue-eyed, rosy-cheeked, short-skirted school girl from the far north-west—Chatterfield in The Family Herald.

The task with which he is now entrusted is considered a very important one, and will occupy the whole of the summer, if not longer. The country to be explored is mountainous and unknown, but from time to time vague reports of great mineral wealth have been taken out to the coast by Indians and trappers. Mr. Leach is a grandson of one of the pioneers of higher education in Canada, the late Vn. Archdeacon Leach.

Thackeray's Correction.

A distinguished foreigner visiting Epsum Downs in Thackeray's company noticed many men dressed as sailors who were not to native and experienced eyes the real article.

"Ah," said the visitor, "these are, I suppose, what you call your British tars?"

"No, no," replied Thackeray; "only Epsum salts."

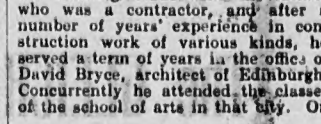

CANADA'S ARCHITECT

DAVID EWART OF OTTAWA IS AN IMPORTANT PERSON.

The Arbitrator of the Design and Decoration of the Dominion's Public Buildings Has Had a Wide Experience—Was First a Builder With His Father and Then Went Into the Study of Architecture.

David Ewart, the chief architect of the Public Works Department of Canada, who will have the principal responsibility in connection with the construction of the new department block, which the Federal Government proposed erecting on MacKenzie avenue, Ottawa, and which will cost several millions of the civil service in the capital and is widely known throughout the Dominion in connection with erection of public buildings.

David Ewart was born in Penicook, near Edinburgh, Scotland, and was educated at the parish school in that place. When quite a lad he learned the building trade with his father, who was a contractor, and after a number of years' experience in construction work of various kinds, he served a term of years in the office of David Bryce, architect of Edinburgh. Concurrently he attended the classes of the school of arts in that city. On

What Do You Know About It?

That's what a customer asked me recently about a patent medicine I had sold for years, and I was forced to admit that in reality I knew nothing more than what appeared on the label, wrapper and advertising.
Some of the claims made were so extravagant that of course I could not take them seriously, but concluded I had better find a line of remedies I did know something about.

Nyall's Family Remedies

are manufactured by a House with a solid reputation of over half a century.

The formulas are exceptionally good ones and are freely furnished to the Drug Trade. There are no secrets simply because they are honest and have nothing to conceal. If I didn't believe in them I wouldn't recommend them to you.

Anything you buy
with the Name—Nyall's will give you satisfaction.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

It is stated that the main C. P. I.
C. canal has broken away west of
R. Allen's farm.

Sunny Alberta in all her glory has been a little too much so the past week to suit some folks.

Namaka has been fortunate in getting a few good rains that skipped her nearest neighboring towns.

J. M. Telford shipped 100 head of horses last Tuesday night, being a portion of his recent big sale.

F. R. Harrison and wife and F. Wilborn arrived in town Saturday from Seattle, Wash.

There are quite a number of well-kept gardens about town that are attracting attention.

The usual bi-monthly auction sale will be held at the Gleichen Horse Repository at 2.30, Saturday afternoon.

In the United States, the value of the eggs produced is four times larger than the entire steel product of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Wishart and family left Tuesday afternoon for Banff, where they will spend a few days before returning to the Calgary fair.

The Clark Bros. shipped 18 head of their Clydesdale horses to the Calgary Exhibition on Tuesday.
Store honors in sight for Gleichen and the Clarks.

Arial & Son are fitting up John Clark's building on Fourth Ave.
for an office, which will be occupied by them and Bailiff Laycock.

It is not very often that The Call has an opportunity of advertising found money, and no doubt Mr.
Nelson will have a few claimants for the long green.

There was a nice shower of rain Tuesday evening and weather has been much cooler since. A few good similar showers would be much appreciated.

Miss R. Emily, Miss A. Lilly and Master John Ferguson, of Strathmore, arrived Sunday to try the entrance examinations for the high school.

Many a man has learned the last week that there is more surety in irrigation than in the franks of nature, when it comes to growing farm produce.

You must forget if you would be happy. It was a philosopher who said that life without an absorbing occupation is hell, for joy consists in forgetting life.

Wm. Brown of Queenstown is having a double cottage erected on Eighth avenue for renting. There is a good opportunity in Gleichen for similar enterprises.

W. J. Burr shipped a whole trainload of horses last week to Ryan & Fair at Winnipeg. There were over 500 animals in the shipment all raised north of Gleichen.

Oh, dear, no The Call does not say the crops are a failure. Not by any means, just that they do not look up to the mark at this season of the year. This applies only to the crops that were not irrigated at the right time.

The three children of Geo. Wake-fields' and two of F. Renaud's returned Tuesday from St. Boniface Convent near Winnipeg where they have been attending school for the past year. They were a happy lot when they reached home and their parents were just as much delighted to have them back.

J. M. Telford states he has 160 acres of wheat that looks as good as any crop he has ever seen in this district at this time of the year during his residence here of over twenty years.

School closes for vacation today and since Monday the Gleichen children have been working hard on their examinations along with a number from Strathmore, Bassano, Queenstown and other schools.

Mr. A. R. Yates, the enterprising druggist, is always looking for the best things in his line.

The days of the secret patent medicine are about over. The recent wave of food and drug legislation throughout North America has set people thinking more about these things.

After looking carefully into different lines with a sharp eye to quality first of all, he has adopted the Nyall's Family Remedies.

There are about eighty of them,
one for each of the important ills.
They are not cure alls, but scientific remedies designed for specific purposes.

Mr Yates is very much pleased with the Nyall goods and would like to tell you about them.

F. Brandle, who occupied a position in T. H. Beach's harness shop paid a flying visit to Swift last week and upon his return for his homestead north of the Red Deer river.

Geo. Gray shipped several of his race horses to the Calgary Fair one day last week and everyone hopes George will succeed in opening the eyes of the city folks with what Gleichen can do in racing stock.

A. R. Yates is building a residence on Ninth avenue near the echo house. It looks a rather serious this time.

While a lot of people in Alberta are being induced by advertising to invest in California oil shares, it might be well for them to remember that in Alberta there are just as promising opportunities in oil, and that the capital they are sending away would develop these fields and at the same time enhance the value of their other interests in Alberta, whatever those interests may be.

A Perfect Stick

is what the average ready-made makes a man look like.

¶ No softness, no flowing curves, no vigor.

¶ Be among the well dressed men.

¶ Clothes made for you and for nobody else are the only kind that will give you Character, Grace and Good Form.

¶ Clothes patiently and lovingly shaped and worked by hand to fit you.

¶ Enough fabrics to make your eyes glaze, enough colors to make them
